The first century CE was characterized by the Roman conquest of Judea, leading to increased Roman influence and control. During this era, Jewish society was grappling with issues of identity, messianic expectations, and religious reform, all of which heavily influenced the textual developments that would become the New Testament. Meanwhile, the Greco-Roman world was a melting pot of philosophies, religions, and social practices. The spread of Hellenistic culture provided a linguistic and cultural framework that facilitated the dissemination of Christian ideas. Greek, as the lingua franca, became the primary language for many New Testament writings, contributing to their broad reach beyond Jewish communities.
