Origins and Context of New Documents 1967

The Cultural and Photographic Climate of the 1960s

The mid-20th century was a period of profound social upheaval in the United States. Civil rights movements, anti-war protests, urbanization, and shifting cultural norms created a fertile ground for artists seeking to capture authentic snapshots of American life. Photography, already established as a potent documentary tool, evolved into a means of revealing the complexities of identity, class, race, and social change. During this era, the New York School of Photography, led by figures such as Robert Frank and Robert Adams, emphasized candidness, spontaneity, and an engagement with everyday life. It was within this fertile environment that the New Documents exhibition and publication emerged, aiming to showcase three distinct yet interconnected visions of American society.

The Genesis of the New Documents Exhibition

In 1967, the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) in New York organized the New Documents exhibition, curated by John Szarkowski—a pivotal figure in shaping modern photography discourse. The exhibition aimed to present a new generation of photographers whose work diverged from traditional, posed portraiture and studio work, favoring raw, unfiltered depictions of contemporary life. The three photographers—Arbus, Friedlander, and Winogrand—were selected for their innovative approaches, each offering unique perspectives:

- Diane Arbus: Focused on marginalized, eccentric figures, revealing the human condition in its most vulnerable and authentic forms.
- Lee Friedlander: Engaged in urban street photography, capturing reflections, signage, and layered compositions that unravel the complexity of American city life.
- Garry Winogrand: Known for energetic, spontaneous street scenes that embody the chaotic pulse of American society. The exhibition was groundbreaking not only for its content but for its emphasis on the personal vision of each artist, emphasizing authenticity and immediacy.

The New Documents Publication: A Closer Look

Published as a comprehensive book accompanying the exhibition, New Documents (1967) remains a critical scholarly resource. Its layout and sequencing reflect a deliberate curation that encourages comparative analysis of the three photographers' works, highlighting their shared commitment to candidness while revealing their distinctive styles.

Photographic Style and Themes

The book features selected images from each artist, often juxtaposed to underscore thematic contrasts and similarities: - Diane Arbus: Portraits of outsiders, children, transgender individuals, and those living on the fringes of society. Her compositions often feature direct, confrontational gazes that challenge viewers' perceptions of normalcy. - Lee Friedlander: Urban scenes characterized by reflections, shadows, and complex compositions that layer multiple visual planes. His work often explores American identity through visual puns and ironic juxtapositions. - Garry Winogrand: Dynamic street scenes capturing fleeting moments of spontaneity, emphasizing movement, chaos, and the unpredictability of public life. The sequencing within the publication fosters a dialogue among these styles, inviting viewers to consider how each photographer interprets the American experience.

The Significance of New Documents in Photographic History

New Documents is often regarded as a manifesto of new documentary aesthetics, emphasizing:

- Authenticity: A focus on unposed, candid images.
- Subjectivity: Personal visions and interpretations of reality.
- Urban and Social Focus: Engagement with city life, social issues, and marginalized groups.
- Innovative Composition: Use of reflections, framing, and unconventional angles.

This publication exemplifies the shift from formal, staged portraits to an intimate, often gritty portrayal of everyday life, setting a precedent for future generations.
