Sample Reflection in Special Education: An Example

Below is an excerpt from a hypothetical sample reflection paper to illustrate key elements: > During my recent classroom experience with students with autism spectrum disorder (ASD), I implemented a visual schedule to promote independence. Initially, I noticed that students responded positively, following the schedule with minimal prompts. However, I encountered challenges when some students became overwhelmed during transitions. Reflecting on this, I realized that incorporating more sensory breaks could have eased transitions. According to the principles of sensory integration therapy, providing sensory input can help students regulate their emotions. Moving forward, I plan to integrate regular sensory activities and involve students in creating their visual cues, fostering greater ownership and comfort. This example demonstrates the use of specific experience, analysis, theoretical connection, and future planning — all essential components of a good reflection paper.
